
. . . it seems to me that there is scarce any accomplishment more necessary to a man of sense, than that of Writing well in his Mother Tongue . . . (Ben Franklin)