

Class Officers: Secretary, Jennifer Brown; Treasurers, Tracey Jones/Jamey Brown; Vice President, Joshua Barnes; and President, David Walling.

Eighth graders are full of vigor, vitality and mischief.

These guys are too young to date or to get a driver's license, even though they anxiously await high school and are quite opinionated.

When the question, "What is your favorite subject?" was posed to them, the entire class agreed that Pre-Algebra was the favorite subject. Of course, Josh Barnes had to interject that he hates Miss Jan's standard tests, and Mary Beth Willis wishes to change the curriculum to include her favorite subject, talking.

All work and no play, no way! All of the eighth graders enjoy and participate in sports. The girls spend their spare time shopping and practicing cheering while the boys hunt. Jason Toole enjoys riding his 4-wheeler, and Denise Duncan says she gets bored when winter comes because she can't swim. With all of these activities, you would think the eighth graders wouldn't have time for anything else, but all of them agree they always find some time to fight with their brothers and sisters.

"What you say?" thinks Denise Duncan as she tries to comprehend her science lesson.

Who or what is David Walling day dreaming about as Mary Beth Willis, Kyle Hiers, himself and Jamey Brown wait in line for lunch?
