

Once you become a Senior, your mind goes haywire. Then as the days progress on, you feel a certain awe that makes everyone happy. Whether it be the thought of the cruise in June or the freedom they expect to receive after graduation, one will never know. This year's class has become one big family along with the rest of the school. The feeling of closeness which doesn't come by often, is a treasure of the moment. The changes encountered in our Senior year include the change of headmaster and rules which now include being able to chew gum — without having to sweep!

Now isn't this a face of innocence? Christie Rutland always seems to have that grin.

John Williams assures everyone his mind is worry-free even in Ms. Paula's class.

Chris Williams and William Williams can't understand the meaning; therefore, they try to search for an answer elsewhere.
