

2010 Teacher of the Year

Dan Stroman

Ninth grade homeroom teacher, Dan Stroman has been voted as Andrew Jackson Academy's third annual Teacher of the Year for the 2010 school year.

Mr. Stroman graduated from Orangeburg-Calhoun Technical School, North Greenville College, and Gardener Webb. He has been teaching for the past twenty-four years. Mr. Stroman lives in Smoaks with his wife, Kathie Stroman and their three children, Tybee, Jacob, and Daniel. Tybee and Jacob both graduated from Andrew Jackson, while Daniel (eleventh grade) still attends here. Mr. Stroman works three jobs. He is a preacher, teacher, volunteer firefighter, and a police officer. If not working, Mr. Dan loves to hunt. This is Mr. Stroman's tenth year teaching at Andrew Jackson Academy, where he teaches seventh through twelfth grade.

We appreciate all you do! Thanks for making learning so much fun!!
