

This year the "Green and Gold Review" added another rung to the ladder of high criteria which it has tried to maintain. It has grown in size and content while it has continued to improve.

The "Green and Gold Review" staff, with the help of class and club reporters, published a mimeographed paper once every six weeks.

The "Green and Gold Review" has been the "voice of the students". It has encouraged originality, independent thinking, creative writing and freedom on the part of the student body to express their ideas and opinions on matters concerning our school.

We have not been members of the South Carolina Press Association yet, but we have planned for that next year; thus, adding another rung to our ladder.
