

RADIO CLUB

Although this course was much more difficult than many of the regular school subjects, and required much diligent, extra studying, these nineteen cadets finally mastered such tasks as the International Morse Code and the "Radio Theory."

Some of these cadets did not actually obtain their novice license, but will, in probability, go on this summer with the excellent background they received here in the radio club to get their novice license, and eventually their Ham Radio License.