If a cadet can attain the higher ranks in our school, those of the Commissioned Officers, he becomes a member of the Sash and Sword.

As Officer-of-the-Day, these cadets have a guard detail that is in charge of the school during a twenty-four hour period. As irregularities occur on the campus this cadet makes any decision that must be made to rectify the situation. This experience is most essential in their training to be responsible citizens.

On the judgment and ability of these men depends the success or failure of the military year. The efficiency of the school system is dependent upon these officers who have been selected on their ability to accept responsibility and to see that their men are well-trained. They have all been non-commissioned officers and know the problems that their men will face. These cadets instill in their boys a competitive company spirit.

The members of this organization are leaders.
