

NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS

KNEELING, LEFT TO RIGHT: Mills, Martin, Boland, Ryan, Hisle, Land, R. F., Osteen, Weston, Davis, J. O., Bailey, Littleford, Graham, Manheim, Rountree, Bower, Thomason, Buxton, Kauffman, Smith, W. P., Montjoy, Fishburne, Dahmer, Lothridge. STANDING: Blackwell, Kelly, C. W., Nuno, Smith, R. C., Holland, Gatch, Eanes, Trawick, McTeer, T. H., Fox, Ivester, Ward, deMontmollin, Hoover, Treadway, Lane, Griffiths, Norton, S. C., Hill, Workman, Phail, Rogers, McWhirter, Maloney, Brown, K. O., Jarman, Johnson, Minor, J. G., Harrison, Lovejoy, Napolitano, Beebe, McDonald, Minor, J. W., Moran, Grimes, Lloyd, Blake, Flynn, Robello, Hughes. ABSENT: Dukes, D. E.

To many the Military is divided into two categories: those who give the orders, and those who are given the orders. But this does not include the third and largest class. These cadets are the ones who see that the orders are carried out. The Non-Commissioned Officers are important, in that they are the backbone of our system. Their duty, Sergeant-of-the-Guard, is often hard and thankless, but the training is beyond evaluation. Understanding of the rules and their interpretation depends upon these boys. Having rank means accepting responsibility; by taking this authority and fairly exercising his judgment, a cadet grows to be a young adult.