The 1960-61 Basketball Team started as what most people considered the best yet at C. M. A. The boys played hard and tried to earn the confidence the cadet corps had entrusted them with. The team, composed of seven lettermen, had a tremendous start, losing only one game in the first half season of play. Mishaps, which have seemed to plague all of C. M. A.'s athletic teams, struck again. This year misfortune came by the way of ineligibility, as three of the starting five players were lost because of it. At this point Coach Dukes reorganized the team. This process was slow and tiring, but the fine coaching of Coach Dukes and Coach Gallagher showed. This group of boys, led by Darby Dukes and Sonny Manheim, the remaining starters, began to show promise as a fine squad when the season ended.
