

The day rushed by in blur of impressions; every hour has brought something new, and we have not been conscious of time. But finally a bell rings, and we relax. A day comes to an end with a burst of enthusiasm, an explosion of release.

