COL. JAMES F. RISHER
President

A noted citizen of South Carolina, a man to look up to, is Col. James F. Risher. In 1958 he founded Camden Military Academy, after teaching and acting as Headmaster of Carlisle Military School. Through his various actions over the years he has helped to influence the lives of many young men. His efforts in the educational field are full of sacrifices. Thus we can truly say Col. James F. Risher's life is one for a cadet to live up to.

For twelve years Col. Lanning P. Risher, our Headmaster, has worked hard to make CMA one of the best military schools in the nation. He has built up the school from 87 cadets in 1958-59 to a full capacity of 245 cadets in 1969-1970. His efforts have been untiring, and the excellence of the school in its many phases this year is largely due to this effort. No problem is too small or too large to be carried to the Colonel's office, and we know that we will have a sympathetic, understanding, and impartial hearing.
