

COMMISSIONED OFFICERS

MSG Allen Walters

The non-commissioned officers, headed by MSG Allen Walters, are the backbone of the academy. These are the men who stay in close contact with the rest of the corps and perform the minute details which are a part of military life. It is essential to have a good non-commissioned officer corps from which to choose the future leaders. They are an important part of the chain of command which is necessary to run a large organization. Credit is rarely given to the corporals and sergeants, but they, as much as anyone else, work to make our school the fine, honor-rated academy that it is.
