

J. F. Risher Guard

Fancy Routine.

Throwing over the commander.

J.V. Drill Team: Commander Ogsbury

Varsity Team: Commander Player

Starting the routine.

More fancy drill.

This year's James F. Risher Guard means different things to different people. To members of the team, it means hard work, practice, and a lot of pride. To the other members of the corps, it means a group of guys who fall out at drill and disappear until lunch. The team has had more difficulties than usual this year — from the lack of rifles until after Christmas to teaching new members how to drill with the precision and flair that characterize the team. Even with all this we performed admirably at the Tiger Drill Meet at Clemson, bringing home four trophies. The team was judged the 3rd Place Overall Team; 2nd Fancy Platoon; 3rd Place Basic Platoon; and Greg Bruce brought home the 2nd Place Basic Individual.

Even with all these accomplishments to our credit, the whole team agrees that none of it would have been possible without the support and dedication of the coach, CSM Stanley S. Staley.