

Bravo Returns

... as Honor Company

Returning as Honor Company, Captain Gary Micko, his staff, and his troops want to win again. They see a repetition of that recognition over the horizon and are running hard toward it, confident that they're best-drilled, have the battalion's sharpest uniforms, and boast the corps' highest morale.

"'B' Company is the ground floor of CMA, down to earth and very easy going," according to Craig Moyer. These lads look at CMA life from a perspective that everyone has a job to do and he does it. They're very laid back, not allowing things to get to them. If they lose a phase, they don't get upset or pout, but take it in stride and get to work for the next round.

"B" men hang tough, confident they're BEST.

(Above) Staff. Front: Cpl Jeff LeNeave, Guidon. Standing: MSG Sean Matthews, Capt Larry Seymour (Advisor), 1st Lt Sean Boone, Company Commander Capt Gary Micko, 2d Lt Richard Coulter, MSg Dalton Kern.

(Below) 2d Lt Sean Matthews, pictured here as a Platoon Sergeant, readies his formation to "march in," into the mess hall for lunch.

