

CHARLIE COMPANY

Working as a family, Charlie Company stuck together well through the year of '87 under the leadership of Eric Polins and Jon Faulkner who pushed motivation and dedication on the entire respectful company. Learning lessons of life, vividly living in good spirits, showing the friendship of every cadet, pulling through hard times, Charlie Company stuck together as an honor company should. Every cadet put in his free time, blitzing halls, walls, and rooms. The company worked, lived, loved, and led the way together — winning the way upward prestigiously to the top in a military fashion.
