

The harriers enjoyed a very good year, a 6-2 record. In the season opener against Heathwood Hall on their turf, the Spartan Cross Country men took four of the first six places. Later the cadets-garnered five of the first seven places against Chesterfield High School and, in a return meet, four of the five top spots. Hammond Academy was CMA's nemesis, 26-29 in a first encounter and, in the second, the same squad creamed the Spartans 22-36. The season, however, ended on a high note with the Spartans running away from Heathwood Hall, 19-36.

The team formed a close bond with their new coach, Director of Admissions Major Richard McClendon, whose enthusiasm generated the spark that made the team light it up at meets. New boy Jason Kasemeier and Radi Clytus led the team most of the season, with Raji Singh and Lee Weaver running side-by-side. David Ramsey, lost toward season's end to injury, fought with determination. Sophomore Joey Mashburn, who consistently came home in the top five, will play a key role in years to come.

Several members of the team decided to keep up their training after the regular season and formed a cycling team, staying fit through the winter months in preparation for biathlon and bike racing competition. The Spartan squad is a force to reckon with.
