

Lettermen and Flyboys

Kneeling are Aero Club members Dana Lunsford and Mike McCoy, standing, Juan Montezuma and Steve Godwin.

A prestigious organization, Block "C" Club members have earned a letter in a varsity sport. These athletes are easily distinguished from others around campus by their CMA letter jackets which signify that they have lettered, in some instances in three or four different sports.

Woodward Field, the Kershaw County airport, adjoins the CMA campus, whetting the interests of cadets who want to fly. Hawk Aviation provides the training and the vehicle to earn pilot licenses. This year a cadet aviation quartet comprises the flyboy contingent, CMA's Aero Club.

At last autumn's 11th Annual Classics and Antiques Fall Fly-In, 500 aircraft filled the field. A study in contrasts, Builders Transport's sleek Learjets which are hangared at Woodward Field, barely drowned out the roar of vintage reciprocating engines of aircraft circling the area.

Cordt Trumpy and Luis Janssen compare observations on a World War II vintage SNJ Texan.