

Forward, March.

A residual sense of pride, tinged with a feeling of sadness, marks the end of another CMA year. We have laughed together and learned from each other. We have stood together through good times and bad, for we are one corps, a brotherhood. Some of us may have fought the system, others of us strove to excel in it. All of us forged bonds which will link us all our lives.

Seniors begin their forward march into life, only a step away from CMA, but to a very real, less sheltered world. For them May 22nd marks a moment in time that is at once an end and a beginning. For seniors, underclassmen, faculty and staff, "Forward, March" is our directive, marching forward to the future.

The Corps, marching forward.
