

renaissance

Page 21

Life is what you make it and Spartans have enjoyed a rebirth of spirit — as depicted, often high — here at Camden. Suspended moments in time include Cadet Morgan, dining hall KP (far left), erupting from the kitchen, tray in hand: “Hello! My name is David. I’ll be your waiter today.”

(Continuing counterclockwise) The sergeant-of-the-guard maintains cadet accountability in the dorms during study-hall evenings. Here, Taylor Rion, Eric Putman, and Nick Medina check out for the library with clipboard-wielding Derek Whisenhunt, “C” Company SG. The signal’s loud and clear. Louis Baker sounds formation “fall-in.”

Like an apparition from a Greek past, Spartan Mike Hargett reaches out to Lonnie Broome as modern day spirits Chet Lightcap, Jon Felice, Mike Yount, and Eric Story (back) ready for gridiron action. On this day, their spectator enthusiasm contributed to victory over Waccamaw Academy, 29-0.

At the fall Visitors Day hop, Eric Gadlage and Crystal Lane sit one out. The gym is the scene for the dancing.

Cadet Mark Pressley, tablehead, promotes a spirit of sharing between diners Ken Davidson, James Kaiser, Jon Starratt, and (foreground) Kevin Pohlman. Mrs. Bessie Davis and her staff serve three meals every day, family style.

(In the middle) Allow me! Damon Edmondson, Eric Gadlage, and Ted Dailey are having fun but miss the message at the entry to Carlisle House.

