

The Daily Routine

It all comes down to doing ordinary jobs extraordinarily well — over and over again. The daily routine is the basis for self-discipline, achievement, and ultimately pride and confidence. One day we may look back on our life at CMA and marvel at how accomplished we became.

Where's your cap, Selke? Ragland gives a sharp look as Company Commander Isom leads C Company in to lunch.

Company clerks Boyette, Smith, Haigney, Flanagan, Lange. Adjutant Edmondson. Cadets outperform computers in keeping track of merits and demerits.

Keeping the company bulletin board current is important job.

Broome shows Keserica how to do it while the rest of the platoon looks on.

Another day of duty: OG Doug Eader has a question for OC Col. Cook.
