Carlisle School

The Carlisle School was erected in 1892 by the friends of Christian education in Bamberg, and presented to Wofford College. Its aim is to offer the benefits of moral and intellectual development, under the best conditions, to the youth of this State. How well it fulfills its high mission, the large number of young men and young women it has sent out with quickened minds and exalted purposes bear ample testimony. It is a school of character. It seeks to embody as its ideal the spirit of the man for whom it is named — the late Dr. James H. Carlisle.
