

SAT SCORES CONTINUE TO RISE

ACADEMICS STILL THE PRIORITY

CPT Simonson, biology teacher extraordinaire, holds forth on immunology. He also rescues gerbils.

Even from behind, Terrel, McCann, and Hancock are recognizable as they attack algebra problems at the board.

At a time when SAT scores are declining nationwide, CMA was fortunate to experience an increase this year. Colonel Risher, Headmaster, attributes this rise in scores to an able and dedicated faculty, as well as to the academic program that CMA has in place: enforced and monitored study halls, mandatory homework daily, instruction in study and test-taking skills, and intensive vocabulary studies. We in CMA also believe that the discipline inculcated by military training can have only a positive effect on student achievement. We have a balanced approach to educate the whole person, and we are proud of the progress that our students have made.

MAJ Sloan unravels the intricacies of myth and legend for his English I students.

MAJ Lepage gives Cadet Brantley some valuable one-on-one instruction in chemistry.