

CMA CADETS RECOGNIZED BY LEGISLATURE

VISIT STATE CAPITOL

Cadets file past John C. Calhoun and upstairs to view legislative proceedings.

Seventh grader Travis Blalock appears somewhat forlorn, but he's listening.

Field trips are a vital part of educational enrichment at CMA. In January seventh and eighth graders visited the SC State Capitol in Columbia, where they were greeted by Speaker of the House, Robert J. Sheheen, and had the added pleasure of meeting 5th District Congressman, John Spratt. While there, they witnessed the House of Representatives in session, during which they were formally recognized, and received a round of applause from House members. Field trips such as this give CMA students experiential knowledge that makes classroom theory more meaningful and understandable.

Cadets watch legislative proceedings. While Hersh points and comments, Covar and Lott converse in the foreground.

Lopez, Miller, CM Morrison, and Mathis pose before a Revolutionary War scene.
