

Geiger, Caudell, and Ellison, the most advanced CMA math students, have a tough challenge in calculus under Colonel Graham.

Although the environment is scientific, at the moment MAJ LePage is teaching spelling and vocabulary to Spence, Ellison, and Brantley.

Preparation for Life

Preparing students for life is the ultimate goal at CMA. A major part of that preparation comes in the classroom. Making students aware of the importance of their education and the role of education in their futures remains a high priority. Small classes, study periods, nightly homework assignments, and study skills lessons combine to focus our students on the important task of learning. By developing the self-discipline to work on their own, they learn lessons that will spell success in later life.

LTC Kelly R. Schrader, Jr.
Dean of Academic Affairs

Eleventh grade Honors English students, Harman and Kemmerlin, engage in a spirited discussion. Peterson and Caudell get ready to join the fray.