

C Company

Honor and Pride

Being CMA Honor Company three years in a row creates pride in the ranks, and according to CPT Matt Judkins, CO, "We're in the running again. We take drill seriously. CMS Martain makes certain we do."

Pride extends to other areas too. 1LT Mike Paporone, XO, stresses the importance of grades: "We do extra things to keep grades up, such as assigning extra duties if a cadet skips tutorials or misbehaves in class."

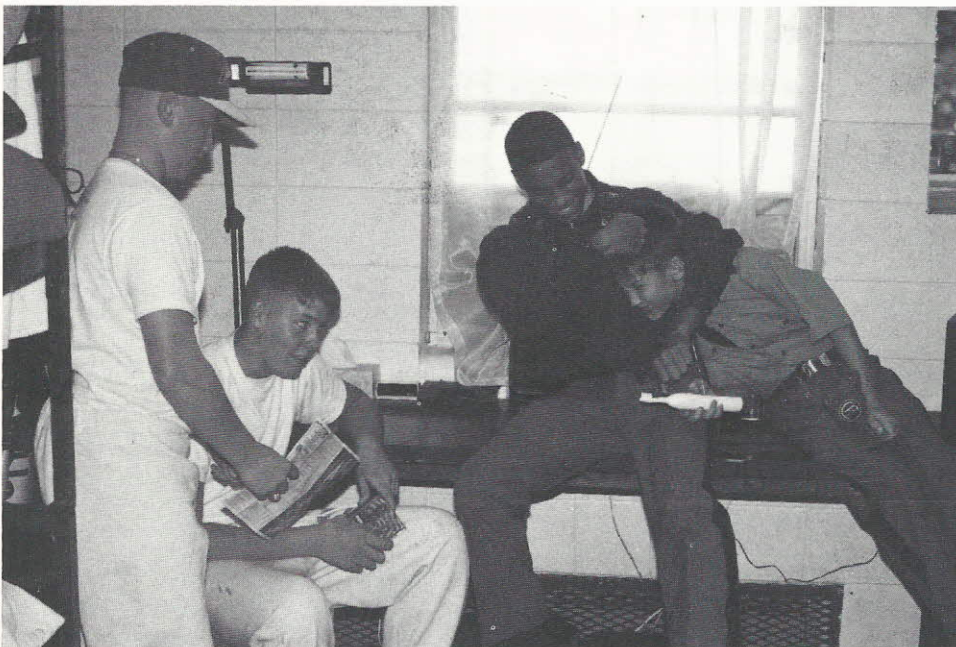

Cleanliness is another focus. "We keep everything clean," says 2LT Landon Simmons, "the hall, rooms, and the latrine. Pride and frequent inspections are the key."

2LT Sam Lisi cites the positive influence on younger cadets: "Most cadets in Charlie seem motivated to do well, and this creates a good environment for the large number of seventh and eighth graders that we have."

Honor and pride go a long way. C Company has already represented CMA in the Veterans Day Parade and looks forward to other events.

Staff: 1SGT WL Simmons, Guidon CM Treska. Row 2: 2LT SC Lisi, 2LT JB Thomasson. Row 3: 1LT MJ Paporone, CMS Rosvelt Martain, CPT MP Judkins.

Underwood and Adams look on as senior 1SGT LaRhue Lane horses around with seventh grader Jay MacGregor.

CSM Martain, Tactical Officer, is surrounded by a slew of C Company cadets as they wait for activity formation.