Academic Honor

A young man's necessary and designated role in society is to be a student. He must be armed with knowledge to succeed in a competitive world. If he performs this role with honor, he strives to do his best—learning study skills, adopting productive study habits, and applying himself assiduously. Moreover, he values honesty and truth in his academic pursuits. He presents to his teachers only work that is truly his and gives proper credit to those whose ideas and information he uses. He looks contemptuously upon cheaters. For his honorable effort he enjoys the favor, plaudits, and social advancement that academic achievement brings.

LTC Kelly R. Schrader has served at CMA for sixteen years. For the last ten years, he has been Academic Dean. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of South Carolina.
