The Future of Sports

One of the best predictors of the future is past performance. This year the football Spartans ran their record of conference titles to seven out of the last eight years. And although this was a rebuilding year for the basketball team, on any given night they could compete with the best teams on their schedule. Conference basketball titles stand at an impressive six out of the last nine years. The baseball team won the conference championship last season and has favorable prospects for this spring. Moreover, this was the best season in recent memory for the cross-country team. CMA teams will continue to play with pride and intensity. That is our heritage.
