

Cadet Concepcion is smiling at the moment, but he will not be amused when test time comes around. CPT Cerezo, Spanish instructor, is known for his challenging tests.

Jason McGoldrick, Desi Melvin, Matt Anderson and other seniors are engrossed in an English IV writing assignment.

Molding the Whole Man

The journey of education should be a lifelong pursuit, but the beginning of education is schooling. At CMA we seek to provide our cadets the schooling necessary to succeed in college and in life. Our institution provides one of the best school programs in the country, and at the same time, an opportunity for education in the broader sense. The “whole man” concept is central to the success of our program: academic, physical, and moral development make the CMA graduate ready for the world.

LTC Kelly R. Schrader
Academic Dean

Colonel Fletcher, mathematics instructor, helps Brandon Johnson with a problem in pre-algebra, Cadets Bryant, Ravenel, Parkman, and Plunkett absorb the information.