

To Fort Jackson, Once Again

Surrounding the 75mm artillery piece are LET IV cadets FR Olieberg, JF Dickey, LTC Paul Cook, TL Lanham, JE Walston, E Bolenbaugh, JL Isbill, RC Austin, GR Curry, BA Blazek, TC Martindale, J Hogfoss, RM Holmes, RW Smith, and TL Tunstall.

CMA cadets visit Fort Jackson every year. This year the LET IV class went to observe the US Army basic training curriculum and techniques. The activities comprise an interesting day of observing training exercises and some actual participation by cadets.

The centerpiece, the pride and joy of the Ft. Jackson Training Command, is "The Tower," a formidable challenge for recruits that was featured in the motion picture Renaissance Man.

Cadet CPT Richard Holmes is on the range preparing to fire an AT-4. In addition to observing training techniques, cadets were able to participate in several exercises.

Cadets observe simulated hand to hand combat. The tips of the mock weapons the participants are using represent bayonets.

The cadets had lunch at the Ft. Jackson NCO Club. Josh Walston and Brad Blazek try out the bar stools.

Roy Smith tests a barber's chair for comfort and gets a little rest at the same time.
