

Today is just the beginning of the rest of your life, Justin. I want you to know that I am so proud of you. You have accomplished one of the biggest goals in your life, graduating from high school. The sky is the limit. Include God first in your life as you make your decisions. Remember that life begins and ends with these decisions that you make each day. I will always be there for you. I love you with all my heart.

Your best friend, Mom

P.S. I know that your father would have been proud of you also.

