

LTC C. H. Armstrong, Commandant, is a West Point graduate and holds a master's degree from Pacific Lutheran University. The commandant is pleased with some current directions in leadership development among the cadet corps: "Cadets are much more involved in running the companies and the battalion. The PT Program has helped build cohesion and spirit. We are paying better attention to basic military school skills."

A VMI graduate, LTC Steve Young, Director of Development and Alumni Affairs, took his master's degree at the University of Missouri. He and his associate Diane Robinson reach out to our base of alumni, parents, and friends to provide them the opportunity to donate money and gifts of time or other products and items [gifts of kind] Camden can use. He clearly articulates the importance of philanthropic support and its role in a non-profit independent school and adds that all gifts are tax-deductible. Colonel Young noted: "We seek to increase our Annual Fund for scholarships each year and build endowment funds to help secure our future. Working together, we have great potential to make this happen--one gift at a time. He shared the way Emerson captured this feeling of helping others: "It is one of the most beautiful compensations of life that no man can sincerely try to help another without helping himself."
