

Academics in Action

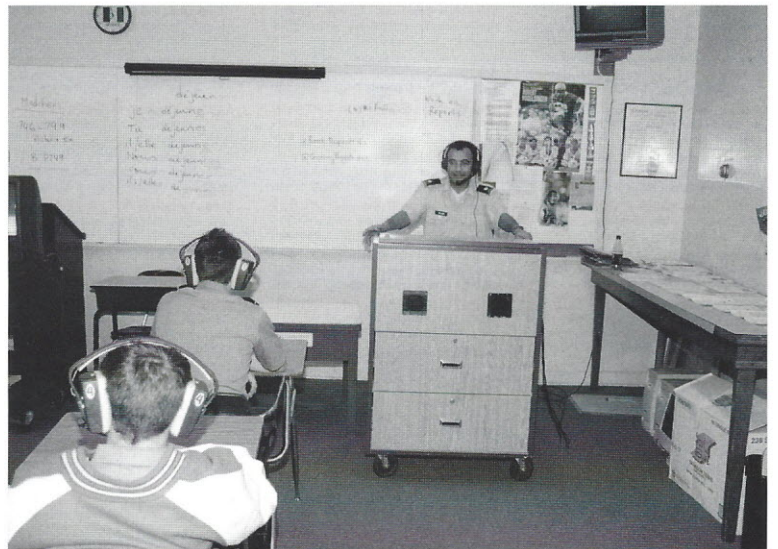

When the fragrance of formaldehyde wafts down the halls, everyone knows its dissection time. Young scientists: (left) Herschel, Carr (right) E Land, Marchese, Land, G Jones, Shockley, and Trott.

Librarian Melinda Kane checks out a book to Cadet Sellers. She has presided over the library's physical renovation and its modern, technological advances.

Neely, Hall, Walker, and other cadets are hard at work in the computer laboratory, learning keyboarding, spread sheets, and programs such as Word and Excel.

The Language Laboratory enables LTC Mohsen Ferjani, French instructor, to communicate with his students as they listen to various selections in French.