

4. I appreciate the opportunity to teach and coach at Camden Military Academy. Learning builds their self-confidence and prepares them to be competitive in our society. - CPT Dennis Reeder

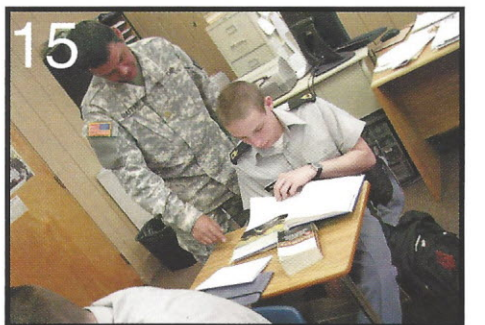

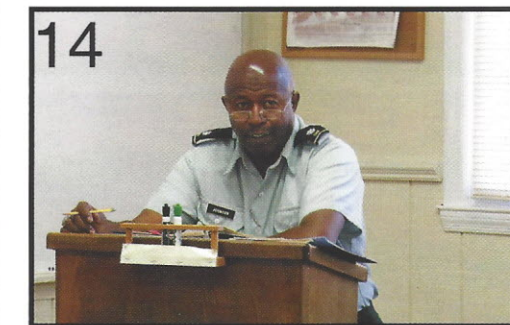

6. The most rewarding part of teaching at Camden Military Academy is to instill morals and values through the teaching of literature, English and drama to an outstanding multicultural corps of cadets. I try to incorporate multicultural education with emphasis on values by using literature, English and drama to increase cultural awareness.
LTC Hartley-Yarborough

7. "For me, it's hard to sum up briefly the most rewarding part about teaching at CMA. I enjoy the small classes, the ability to get to know my students individually and the diversity of the student body."
Col Jordan

16. My favorite thing about teaching at Camden Military Academy is the cadets and the rapport that I have with them. I love teaching school, and Camden Military Academy is the perfect place for me. I enjoy spending time with my students, and the small classes and the tutorials that are built into the schedule are ideal. There is always time for extra help and getting to know your students' strengths and weaknesses. Because the school is fairly small, I know most of the cadets. I enjoy supporting their sports events, so I can celebrate all the cadets' successes outside of the classroom, as well as their academics. Alice Thaxton

The most rewarding part is when the kids actually start understanding the material and are enjoying it. Physics and Chemistry can be challenging, even for "A" students.
CPT Taft Alford

14. "The most rewarding part of coaching and teaching at CMA is just being able to see the lights that come on when the cadets learn something new about World Geography or World History."
LTC William Johnson

15. This year the most rewarding experience at CMA came with the most recent exams. Not only did my students score better than in any previous year, but they actually demonstrated through the extra credit section, that they have been learning new vocabulary, hence improving their SAT scores. All these vocabulary tests have not been in vain.
