

LIFE SCHOOL STORY

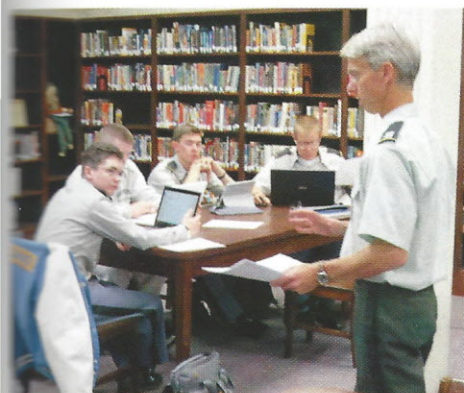

Academics

The most successful coaches, teachers, and administrators will be those who attempt to understand the motivation of young people; those who approach the "things of youth" as active participants rather than passive on-lookers; and, those who believe education is an integration of all facets of life and are willing to contribute more of "themselves" than has been necessary in the past in order to reach young minds. Camden Military Academy has always taken pride in educating cadets that are up-to-date in technological trends, know the foundational structure for all subject areas, and have the discipline and skills to transition into college. Small classes, qualified teachers, and monitored study halls, are just a few tactics used to rank Camden Military above average.

"With the academic discipline and opportunities Camden offers, I've excelled at every class since my arrival."

Santiago Villalobos

Additionally, we are continuously evaluating our curriculum to ensure that the cadets are presented with an academic rigor that will allow them to compete globally. All of these are proven ingredients that will remain at the core of Camden Military Academy.

CPT Spratt gives his students a lesson in English.

Dual Enrollment Cadets

Alexander Ranft

"Dual Enrollment opportunities are a fantastic feature of CMA. These classes give me a chance to see what college classes may be like. Also these classes give you college credits, which helps a lot for anyone planning on going to college."

Christofer Williams

"Captain Spratt's English 101 course is one of the most engaging English classes I have participated in to date. Captain Spratt taught the course in a comprehensive manner that I found engaging. Overall I have found this course enjoyable."

Michael McDermott

"Dual credit classes are a great way to get ahead in college. Not only does it give you the high school credits, it also gives you the college credits and a good preparation for how your college classes will be."

Brent Buckley

"Dual credit courses offer a great way for students to experience a college level curriculum, before actually enrolling. They also allow me to get ahead in my freshman year, giving me college credit hours as well as high school hours."

LTC Beckham stands with some of his best students.