"I first arrived here in the 9th grade. Since I come from Brazil and I have never been to an American high school, my first few months were a culture shock to me. I was not used to the way of life, and coupled with our military structure, the school was definitely difficult to adapt to. My first Platoon Sergeant, Ryan Morales, took me under his wing and quickly became a great friend. He later achieved the position of Company Commander in Charlie Company, and along with First Sergeant Collins, LTC Heflin, and Sergeant First Class Brown, I was influenced on my journey to become Battalion Commander my senior year. They all pushed me to become my personal best each year, and they should be accredited with much of my success at this school." - Santiago Villalobos of Curitiba, Brazil.
