

The game is started with the CMA march-on. As the band plays the fight song, the Spartan football team enters the field, exploding through a paper banner and sprinting down field between two lines made up by the Corps in their parade finery. On the sidelines and bleachers, old friends are reunited, children play, the smell of hotdogs and hamburgers wafts through the air, and football is played.

gaining momentum

Alpha Company cadets march on to the field with rifles for the annual Homecoming parade. The parade, a tradition at CMA, honors past graduates.

Spectators inch closer and closer to the field, getting into the action of the game.
