

THE PALMETTO

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

As this edition of The Palmetto is the first publication of its kind to be compiled by a graduating class at Carlisle, we have wished it to be a monument to our work as Seniors, and have striven to make it worthy of our school and of its high ideals.

Since the advent of two of our class, G. L. Muckenfuss and L. M. Peebles, on Carlisle campus in January, 1918, the record of the Class of 1921 has been one of substantial progress and achievements. Though the vicissitudes of life have reduced our number, they have not broken our spirit, and we go forth to challenge the world, to advance to greater accomplishments, and to realize higher ideals.

Besides the two who came in the beginning of 1918, five others have joined the ranks. Our class was organized early this year by the election of the following officers: President, L. M. Peebles; Vice-President, Leroy Dantzler; Secretary and Treasurer, George Muckenfuss.

Peebles, our president, is first to be mentioned. Having entered the Freshman Class in 1918, he has advanced a class each year. Although occasionally he has fits of studying, they seldom last long. He commenced his series of honors in his second year, when he was elected Critic of the Kilgo Literary Society; later he was elected to various other positions in the Society and rounded out his career by becoming its President. Lawrence began his military career as corporal of Company "B", and has since been promoted to more responsible positions. He has been First and Second Lieutenant, Captain, Adjutant, and Executive Officer of the Rifle Club. He is also a member of the "Bull Dog Club," one of the most famous secret organizations ever formed. Being possessed of uncommon ability and unbounded influence, we predict for him a prosperous future.

Leroy Dantzler, better known as "Slitter," is our next subject for consideration. Entering the Junior Class of 1919, he soon showed everybody he was "there with the goods." Leroy studies at times, but he never lets work interfere with his writing letters to various members of the fair sex. His honors began with his election as Critic of the Beach Society, and he has been its Vice-President for two terms. Dantzler has advanced very rapidly in military affairs, having advanced this year from Corporal to First Lieutenant.

George Muckenfuss is next to come under our observation. Having come here four years since and entered the Freshman Class, he has managed, by some trick of magic, to advance each year, and is almost ready to launch out into the storms of life. George was both Secretary and President of the Kilgo Society in 1920-1921. His military promotions were rapid, as he rose from Corporal to First Lieutenant and Adjutant.

Felder Wolfe arrived in 1919, and entered the Junior Class. He is a faithful student and can be relied upon to always do his best. Above all, he has a purpose in life and high ideals. Upon him was placed the duty of criticizing and encouraging the efforts of various members of the Sheridan Literary Society; he was also Secretary of this Society, Literary Editor of The Palmetto, and a frequent contributor of high-class articles to The Bugle.
