

SENIOR CLASS

LAWRENCE HAYWOOD MILLER

Wilkesboro, N. C.

"Where are you from, Mister?" "Err, sir, I'm from North Carolina, or any other place you'd like me to be from, sir." With these words, this North Carolina lad made his informal entrance into the academy. As a roommate and close friend, Lawrence will always be remembered for his comradeship and sterling character. After graduation his quiet and efficient manner is certain to bring him continued success.

JESSIE EUGENE NORTON

Dunbar, S. C.

*Lots of love to a swell fellow,
Norton*

When you first meet Gene you recognize him as a fellow with a ready smile and a genuine friendliness. When you work with him you realize that he is a possessor of a quiet efficiency which makes difficult problems seem simple. Although he studies hard, he still finds plenty of time to indulge in reading the latest offerings of current magazines. This is Gene—ever a gentleman and a fine roommate. He will do well in life.

BILLY BRYAN NORWOOD

Oklahoma City, Okla.

Dancing, sports, and women were his hobbies, and he could handle them all with ease. This happy-go-lucky kid from Oklahoma devoted but part of his time to these pursuits; the rest he spent in total war with the Academic Department. "Billy" is an incurable romantic with love of excitement foremost in his nature. He is the type of guy that everyone likes at first sight.

BENJAMIN WILLISON O'NEIL

Arlington, Va.

The academic department couldn't quite catch "Benny." Their hot breath was always on his shoulders, but he, like an old track man, knew how to keep a lead. Brilliant success or dismal failure are treated alike in "Ben's" calm philosophy, but under his pleasant exterior lies a fighting Irish heart. From his personality one can see why both men and women like him. He likes both—especially the fairer sex. His cool-headed balance will certainly bring him outstanding credit some day.
