

CORPS OF CADETS

Carlisle is especially proud of the many outstanding achievements and advancements that have been made this year along military lines. As in the past years, Carlisle is still under the honorary age old code of arms.

Each school day in the week if you listen you can hear the rhythmical cadence which keeps the battalion in step.

Every man in Carlisle this year is required to take two periods a week of military science in order to learn the finer points in this type of training. It is true that we may never be forced to put this training into practical use, but each cadet, as he learns the science and tactics of modern warfare, knows that he is becoming better fitted to serve a world at peace.

Every Sunday afternoon the corps of cadets executes a formal dress parade which many of the people in town and out of town enjoy. We feel that the training we receive will help us a great deal in the future.
