The "Non-Commissioned Officer's Club" this year has accomplished a great deal toward the good of the corps of cadets. It has had many meetings to discuss and help settle the many difficulties which have occurred during the year.

The non-commissioned officers at Carlisle are just as much the backbone of discipline as they are in the army. We believe this to be true because of the wonderful showing that they have made, and we feel that very little could be accomplished without their assistance.
