

The James M. Grimes Literary Society

(Seated) ULMER, WATSON, G. B., RICHARDSON.

(First row) CLARK, CUEVAS, R., CREEL, ARNOLD, RISHER, L. P., PAULSEN, DUC.

(Second row) SMITH, W., HEINEMAN, TOOMER, BUCETTAS, WILKINSON, ALBREICHT.

(Third row) GARRETT, MEHAFFEY, CRUIT.

The James M. Grimes Literary Society is composed of twenty-five selected cadets who are interested in literary dealings and public speaking.

Each Monday night the members of this society meet and make oral book reports, have debates, and give extemporaneous speeches on subjects designated by the president.

The officers are: Gregory Watson, president; Jack Crosby, vice-president; "Red" Richardson, secretary-treasurer; Johnny Ulmer and Robert Garrett, critics; and Dick Wilkinson and Edward Mehaffey, censors.