

HONOR COUNCIL

The Honor Council is perhaps the most powerful and most highly respected organizations on campus. It is composed of the company commanders, the Major Executive, the Captain Adjutant, and the Battalion Commander who is the co-chairman, along with Major Waddy Thompson as faculty advisor.

On the shoulders of this group rests the responsibility of hearing the cases of cadets accused of major breeches of regulations and then judging the testimony. After carefully weighing all the evidence presented before them they make their decision and send their written recommendation to the Headmaster for final consideration. Serving on the Honor Council is a test of the integrity of the officers since they must be fair and impartial in all cases even though at times some of the cadets who are brought before the Honor Council are some of their best friends.
