

THE REBEL STAFF

JOHN ANTHONY
Editor-in-Chief

CAPTAIN SIDNEY ZEMP
Advisor

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM ANTHONY
Sponsors

To many people an annual is a sort of "book of memories"—and that's exactly what a good annual should be. I just hope that the "'63" REBEL has been successful in this measure. To me, I guess it's the proverbial "dream come true." But like all dreams, there's a pretty good lesson behind it. Being an editor is fine, but it's just one small part. Without the advice of Captain Zemp, and many others, there probably would have been no annual.

As for the real credit for the REBEL, that goes to men like: Pee Wee Phillips, the Assistant Editor, with whom I sat up many a night until two or three o'clock in the morning making out copy and cracking jokes to keep awake; to Earl Needs, Hank Molony, and Marshall Schofield, who were right there with us roguing the faculty's coffee and molding many more unforgettable events, but still getting their annual off to press.

It has been a lot of fun for the staff as well as a lot of work, but now as this work draws to a close and we wrap up the 1963 REBEL, it is our sincere wish that each man as he looks at these pages will draw a fond memory from them.

JOHN M. ANTHONY, Editor-in-Chief.

PEE WEE PHILLIPS
Assistant Editor

BERRY MURRAY
Business Manager

EARL NEEDS
Assistant Business Manager

HENRY MOLONY
Managing Editor

