

FOREWORD

It seems to have traveled so fast, for here we are at the close of another year. The road has been hard and long but looking back it seems too short. Eighty-six of us now wonder what the world holds for our future. In these pages will our memories be collected and in our hearts remain forever.

We would like to thank everyone, who contributed to all phases of our learning, with the deepest gratitude and sincere thanks.

May those who carry on next year and the years to follow devote themselves to learning all possible, letting nothing slip by, and keeping this institution in the highest regard and honor. With these words ending, the 1965 Rebel Begins.
