TRAINING CADRE

This year's Training Cadre really had their work cut out for themselves. The rats were young and hard-headed but in just five weeks, the cadre produced a group of rats ready to perform for a passing General.

The whole school year depends upon this group, and the training they introduce to the first yearman. During this recruit period, it either makes or breaks the rats, in that it determines whether they can take orders with proper response.

The Training Cadre filled all of these responsibilities, and deserves much credit.
