As this year draws to a close, so does the work of the REBEL STAFF. Although the work was long and hard, it was with a sense of pride and achievement that we toiled — not only with regards to the accomplishments of the annual, but those of the corps of cadets themselves. Practice, practice, practice — it seems that that was all everyone did, was practice for one thing or another. As if here we are at last — perfect, or something.

This was a year of change at Carlisle: barracks, mess hall, uniforms. Even the rules were changed (or bent). Possibly the biggest change we made was from follower to leader — from watcher to player — from Sub-freshmen to Seniors. Yep, there have been some changes.

And now we're leaving — again. It seems we're always leaving: something for something else — somewhere for somewhere else.

For this reason — the leaving — we, the 1970 REBEL STAFF, compile this annual: that the memories contained herein may be preserved and cherished for future years. Use it often.
