

TRAINING CADRE 1974

The Training Cadre is a select group of Cadets, chosen by the Senior Army Instructors, whose job it is to train the new cadets entering school each year.

This year, the training cadre was composed of three platoons, with three squads in each platoon.

The length of training period depends on how fast the new recruits can learn. It begins two days before the old boys arrive, and ends approximately six weeks later. This year, the Cadre was a success, as it has been since it started in 1956.

On the second of September, the new boys were placed under the direction of the Cadre and the training period began. When the training period was finished at the end of the six weeks, the new recruits were then assigned to their companies.

The Rebel Staff gives great tribute to these men who gave their time to these new boys in order to help them learn their responsibilities and duties.
