

Grand Opening

School is now ready to open!

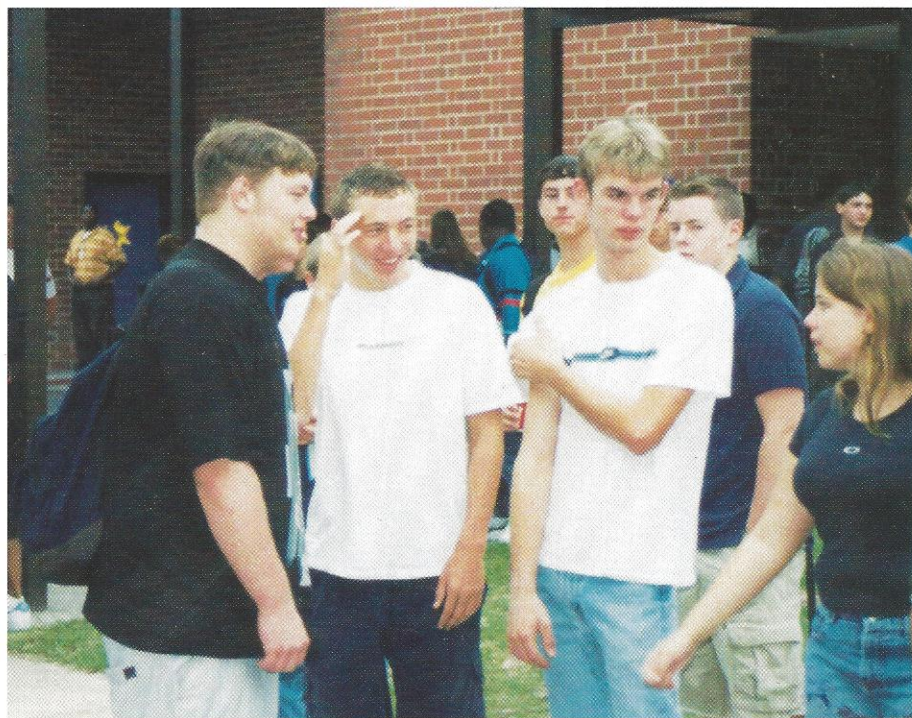

When August 8th arrived, students arrived with new minds, anxious to learn something new from the school's staff. Everyone expected to hear the chimes, but they failed to ring. Bull horns were blown by administrators, bringing the new school to order.

During the first day of school, students dealt with the little problems around the building. "Mainly getting through the massive confusion and showing others where to go was the only little problem I had to deal with," senior Mark Dandridge said.

The infamous question, "Where are you from?" flew from one person to another. "Coming to CCHS (from RHS) has been a great experience for me. I enjoy coming to school now, and I love the atmosphere," says sophomore Beth Brooks.

Through all of the trials and tribulations, the students, faculty and staff made it through the first week of school without major incidents.

Bullhorn frenzy. Holding her bullhorn Mrs. Jones prepares to blow the horn for classes to change. "We need to notify the students in everyway we can," Mrs. Jones said, referring to the bull horns.

Wasting time. While waiting for the bell to ring, junior Freddie Saunders and sophomores Jessica Martin and Ross Houtz talk about the new changes.

Walking through the halls. Sophomores Keri Martineau, Dora Roberts, and Deandra Fraiser discuss the changes. "The reason I like the first day of school is because I can reunite with my friends," Keri said.
