

Collector Inspectors

Mrs. Sammons collects pictures of all of her students from the past. "I love being able to look around my office and see pictures of former and current students," Mrs. Sammons said.

pack-rat vs. neat freak

"I bought a spoon in New York that had the Empire State building on it," senior LaShonda Rogozinski said. This started a great hobby for LaShonda. Students and teachers collected things, everything from souvenir spoons to porcelain pigs.

One way they continued their collection involved receiving gifts from family and friends. "My grandma gives me a teddy bear for every birthday and Christmas," senior Ashley N. Sanders said.

Teachers and students saw things that attracted their attention but were too expensive. "I saw a diamond pig that would be a good piece to my collection, but was too much," journalism teacher Mrs. Brown said.

Some student's and teacher's hobbies included singing, dancing, and even mud bogging. "I love singing and writing songs," sophomore Allen Varnadoe said.

Junior Candice Grant collects letters that she receives from friends. Candice never threw any of her letters away. "It's the little things in life that matters," Candice said.

English teacher Mrs. Nettles poses with her clowns. She protected her clowns with all her heart and soul. "Clowns make people laugh," she said.
