

SHOW ME THE MONEY

Dishin' Out The Dough

Let the quest for cash begin. Some students enjoyed working, usually because they craved money. "Money is pretty," freshman Wesley Davis said.

However, a portion of students did their job for selfless reasons. "[Doing my job] is worth it because it keeps the wilderness clean," sophomore Paul Hornych said.

Students used their well-earned money on things such as clothes, CD's, gas, or on their girlfriends or boyfriends. "Having a job is pretty good, because you don't have to depend on your parents for money. Plus, it's like beating the system for me, because I get tips and they don't count for taxes," senior Iver Brown said.

Junior Heather Burns cheerfully takes an order over the phone. "It takes a lot of energy to work and to go to school," Heather said.

Senior Reggie Davis works hard at BI-LO. The groceries literally rolled in. "I have worked at BI-Lo for a year and eight months, it's a good place to meet people," Reggie said.

Unable to concentrate on her work, senior Sharee Peacock decides to take a break. She enjoys working at Piggly Wiggly, and that explains why she has a bright smile on her face.

Senior Ronald Cook adjusts a bag of corn at Ace Hardware. "I work to pay for my car and parties," Ron said.
